- Confirm your consulate or visa application centre location, date, and time
- Complete the application form and gather your document set (see the Document Checklist)
- Buy travel medical insurance before your appointment, not after - it's checked as part of your submission
- Check whether you're exempt from giving biometrics (recent Schengen application within 59 months)

What to bring

Item	Notes
Passport	Valid, with the required blank pages
Application form	Printed and signed
Photo	Meeting Schengen photo specifications
Insurance certificate	Showing coverage amount, duration, and geographic scope
Supporting documents	Financial, accommodation, travel, and ties evidence

USUALLY NO INTERVIEW, BUT ONE CAN HAPPEN Most short-stay applications are decided on the written file, but some consulates do conduct interviews, especially for first-time applicants or where something in the file needs clarifying. If you're asked to interview, be ready to explain your itinerary and purpose clearly and consistently with your application.

At the appointment

- Arrive at your booked time
- You'll go through identity verification and, if required, fingerprint and photo capture
- Your documents will be checked for completeness on the spot at some centres - missing items may mean rebooking

After your appointment

- Track your application status as instructed by your specific consulate or centre
- If approved, check your visa sticker for its validity dates and number of permitted entries before you travel
- If refused, see the Refusal Decision Guide (Premium tier)
