Application Follow-Up Checklist

Australia - Visitor Visa, health checks, requests for information, and decision

Before you're asked for anything further

- Complete your online application in full and pay the Visa Application Charge
- Gather your document set (see the Document Checklist)
- Check your ImmiAccount regularly - Australia's process is entirely online, so there's typically no in-person appointment unless you're specifically directed to one

If you're directed to a health examination

Item	Notes
Panel physician booking	Only with a department-approved panel physician - book through the instructions in your directive
Passport	Valid, for identity verification at the examination
Previous medical records	If relevant to a condition the examination may cover
MOST APPLICANTS ARE NOT DIRECTED TO AN EXAMINATION OR INTERVIEW The Tourist stream is largely a paper-based process. Health examinations and police certificates are only required when the department specifically directs you to provide them, based on your nationality, circumstances, and intended stay length - not for every applicant.

If the department requests more information

- You may receive a request for further information if something in your file needs clarifying - this is a normal part of the process, not evidence something is wrong
- Respond fully and by the stated deadline; missing the deadline can result in a decision being made without your additional evidence

After a decision

- Track your application status through your ImmiAccount
- If approved, check your grant notification for your visa conditions and validity - there's no physical visa to collect

— If refused, see the Refusal Decision Guide (Premium tier)
